When Terri Trenchard searched for the perfect book to introduce the topics of puberty and reproduction to her growing son, she quickly discovered there was nothing that contained what she needed (and only what she needed). So Terri, wife and mother of two, began to write a book for her son and for anyone else who could use it.

Through humor and straightforward facts, Terri created the character "Bork" to help boys learn about everything from shaving to reproduction and the upcoming stages of physical development — in a comfortable and factual way.

Her book helps open the door to questions and discussions about sex, development, maturation, and reproduction by engaging boys and empowering them with knowledge. She recognized the current popularity of witty, edgy children's books and wrote her book in a similar fashion to be best embraced by the pre-teen audience.

Terri has a master's degree in Education and Human Development from The George Washington University, and a bachelor's degree with a concentration in Psychology from Bucknell University.

As a former teacher, manager, and organization development specialist, Terri applies her knowledge and experience in various educational, leadership, and spiritual settings with children. She lives in Ellicott City, Maryland with her husband and their two children.

Terri is currently developing a similar title for girls, Corky Gives the Whole Scoop about the Facts of Life, as well as additional titles about topics of interest to young adults, including summer jobs and college.
